

Dear Mom,

I hope you are feeling well. I think of you very often and want everything to be shalom. I am sorry for all the pain I caused you with the loss of the jewelry. My sons and wife had absolutely nothing to do with the loss. I got involved in bad business deals that made me mixed up. Caroline is very angry with me over this. I would want to make restitution to you however possible.

I would never want any harm to come to anyone, especially a relative. I thought that once your account was transferred to Goldman everyone would be satisfied. Once the lawsuit was filed not only did they lose their job but while this litigation is going on it makes them blacklisted where it is hard, almost impossible to find a new job until it is over. My sons are not criminals. If there was issues that he used poor judgment it was never to defraud anyone. He always wanted to do the best job he could, and I think he did a good job in making you money. He told me he always wanted to please you and the family. I do not know the agenda of J. P. Morgan nor of your lawyer, but I do know that this lawsuit has destroyed me and my family, and G-d forbid it could get worse if it drags out and J. P. Morgan feels my sons are to blame, they could go after them and bankrupt them over any settlement money. It would be terrible for our family if this would make the newspaper.

Mom, this situation does not have to be dragged out to the long haul bitter end. I asked Chuck as the oldest son and oldest brother, and the fact that he himself is a lawyer to be involved for the good of everyone. In the past he was involved in your investments, and he was at the meeting that I was with you at Stu Morris law office where it was his idea to put in the clause concerning Alexis in the rough draft that was never implemented that got her angry. But now he wants to be oblivious.

Mom I want you to have a good life and I want myself, my wife, my sons, my daughter-in-law and my grandchildren to be part of it. It is never too late. You would be very happy to see your beautiful baby great-granddaughter.

If there is a way for you to bring this lawsuit to a conclusion we would all benefit to move on with our lives. Mom, this lawsuit is not in the best interest for our family. Years ago I was part of the lawsuit that sued over the store. At the time of that lawsuit I felt I was fighting for dad and I was swayed by the emotions of the moment. In retrospect it was a gigantic mistake. We got out of all the successful businesses that dad helped build, and they went public two years after we got out. Being swayed by negative emotions was totally counterproductive.

Mom, I don't see why I can't talk to you. If there is anything you don't want me to talk about I will respect your wishes. At 65 years of age I look back on my life with all the good moments with Dad, Grandma and Grandpa, Uncle Melvin and Uncle Stanley, and especially all the time I was in South Florida and spent time with you. Every day is special. Every day counts. I am reaching out to you and I would like everything to be good and shalom for now and the future.

With all of my love for you,
your son Bobby.
